DETAILED ACTION

Response to Reply

- 1. This is in response to the Reply filed 3/18/2005.
- 2. Claims 4-9 and 66-82 are currently pending in this application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 4. Claims 4-9, 66-82 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Qin et al. (US Pat. 5,550,189).

In regards to claims 4-9, 66-68, and 70-73, Qin teaches a water-swellable modified polysaccharide formed by mixing the modified polysaccharide, water, and a crosslinking agent (see abstract; col. 3, ln. 15-17; col. 13, ln. 63-66). The polysaccharide is carboxyalkyl polysaccharide, such as carboxymethyl cellulose or carboxymethyl starch; and the crosslinking agent is ethylene glycol or butylene glycol (see paragraph bridging col. 5-col. 6; col. 6, ln. 2-11; col. 13, ln. 1-15).

In regards to claim 69, the polysaccharide product is for use in personal care products, such as diapers (see col. 14, ln. 38-40). Moreover, it has been within the skill in the art that intended use would have insignificant patentable weight in a product claim.

In regards to claims 74-82, with respect to how the crosslinked polysaccharide is being formed, it has been within the skill in the art that process limitations would have insignificant patentable weight in a product claim, since the product would include the polysaccharides crosslinked by a polyalkylene oxide.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 3/18/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants contend that Qin differs from the presently claimed invention because the reference does not teach the use of activated polyalkylene glycols as crosslinking agents. However, what Qin teaches would read upon the presently claimed invention. Qin uses carboxyalkyl polysaccharides, such as carboxymethyl polysaccharide and crosslinking agents such as ethylene or methylene glycol. The product of Qin would at least read the presently claimed structure when, for example, taking n=1. Thus, Qin anticipates the presently claimed invention.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37

CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
